

Neurological Products Division Quality Policy

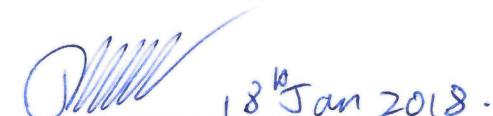

Renishaw plc is fully committed to ensuring that the Neurological Products Division (NPD) adheres to the regulations applicable to the business activities associated with the supply of neurological medical devices.

Through the implementation and maintenance of our Quality Management System, we endeavour to promote behaviours and beliefs which ensure compliance with our regulatory obligations, satisfaction of our customers' requirements and the safety and effectiveness of the devices which we place on the market.

We maintain our quality system by managing product risk and achieving objectives related to:

- The design, development, manufacture, control of sub-contract activities, marketing, sales, installation and service of high-quality innovative medical devices.
- The distribution of third-party high-quality medical devices that complement our portfolio.
- The provision of world-class customer service, which includes post-sales service and ongoing support
- Ongoing investment in our people, our processes and our products
- Effective internal communication to provide feedback to all staff on compliance with and progress towards quality objectives.

As management with executive responsibility, I pledge to ensure that this policy is communicated throughout the Neurological Products Division; is understood and shared by all employees; is effectively resourced in its implementation and is reviewed regularly to ensure its relevance is maintained.
